

AQUATIC WEED CONTROL, INC.

800-543-6694

Showdown in an AWC Territory

This is the story of a territory in trouble. They knew they could count on the AWC Sheriff's Department to do the job right. Sheriff Stark and his AWC deputies were asked to rid the territory of some no good trees, trouble makin' vines and dirty rotten weeds before they could do more harm.

Sheriff Stark hopped on his steady steed and gather all of his deputies. They were told to get all the big equipment out of the barn and prepare for a fight. All precautions were put in place to protect the innocent by means of installing turbidity barriers that prevent the invaders from getting into clean waterways.

Invaded Territory

Precautions were put in place

Those no good trees were pulled up by their boots. The AWC deputies had the long arm of the law (cranes) to help pile them up and throw'd them into wagons that hauled them away.

Pulled up by their boots

Piled up

The AWC Sheriff's Department fought the invaders, day after day, sun up to sun down.

Those dirty rotten weeds and trouble makin's vines were warned not to grow and spread, but did they listen? Nope! So the deputies strapped in, pulled the trigger and down they went.

It took a wagon train to haul the invaders away but the territory was soon rid of them.

As the sun sat in the west, everyone was happy that they had AWC's Sheriff Stark and his deputies, who once again, cleared the territory of invaders. When your territory has bad dudes that need to be removed, you oughta wire us a WANTED poster and we'll saddle up and ride your way.

Throw'd in wagons

Cleared out the invaders

THE END